THESE URNS are made of stone mined in the Himalayan and Kirthar Mountains of Pakistan and transformed into these pieces of art by Pakistan artisans. The stone has geologically evolved over 30 to 60 millions of years from trees, leaves, shells and animals transformed into stone from the lava erupted from volcanoes.

Pits and other marks are common in stone and colours often vary throughout the piece, which is a sign of authenticity. The green and brown colours are influenced by iron and manganese produces violet colours
